Use Smart Notebook as a planning tool for lessons and units. This session will show you how to go from the learning outcome to evidence of success for the learning outcome. This session will give you an example of how to use Smart Response to do assessment for and of learning throughout the activity. Time will be provided to for you to work alone or in teams to build the lessons/units and assessments for your students.

Participants will explore the use of Student Response Systems for formative evaluation/assessment for learning. They will create assessment tools that will be shared with the others in the group and may posted for other teachers to use.

Three follow-up webinars are planned that will cover different topics related to using this software to support learning and assessment. During these webinars you will be able to share your experiences from using the materials created in the first session.
