Learning for the 21st Century-Webinar

Presented by: Roland Case

Date: April 25, 2012

Location: Webinar

About the session: There is great interest in preparing students for learning in the 21st century. Unfortunately there is little consensus and even less clarity on what this would mean and how it might be achieved. This session introduces a series of professional learning videos developed by The Critical Thinking Consortium that define and provide practical guidelines for implementing four core ideas behind the calls for 21st century learning: student engagement; self regulated learning; critical, creative and collaborative inquiry; and teaching and learning in a digital environment.

About the presenter: Roland Case is the Executive Director of The Critical Thinking Consortium and a widely published author and popular educational speaker.

Participants are asked to sign in between 3:00 and 3:45 to check technology
Session begins promptly at 3:45 pm MST
Session ends at 4:50 to allow 10 minutes for wrap-up, Q&A and evaluation

Registration deadline: April 11, 2012

Registration Fee: $20.00
