Program

Educational practices are transitioning from a focus on teaching to a focus on learning. Division and school leaders are striving to develop leadership within the teacher ranks to better support these significant reforms. This two-day training will provide aspiring teacher leaders and those new to leadership roles with the mindsets and skill sets to take on new and expanded leadership roles with a focus on:

- understanding leadership and leadership principles,
- the importance of building and maintaining effective relationships
- the role of instructional leadership within a learning community.

Day 1

- Reflection on what it means to be a leader of learning
- Understanding of the importance of identity for effective leadership
- Application of frameworks for leadership
- Understanding of adult learning theory
- Awareness of research on trust in schools

Day 2

- Awareness of points of intervention for successful leadership
- Distinguish dialogue and discussion
- Skills with paraphrasing and asking questions for growth
- Understanding of characteristics of effective meetings
- Repertoire of strategies for use in meeting facilitation

Presenters

Cal Hauserman

Cal has been an educator his entire professional career. He has taught at all levels from kindergarten to graduate school. He started out as a high school Social Studies teacher and then made the switch to the elementary level where he was a teacher and teacher/librarian. Midway through his career he became an administrator acting as a vice principal and then principal at four middle and elementary schools.

Leadership and its role in creating dynamic school environments has long been an area of interest. Cal's Ph.D. studies focused on Transformational Leadership and most recently, he was the Program Director for the Alberta Teachers' Association Project - Leader2Leader Mentorship for Administrators. This was a province-wide initiative in which beginning principals were paired with experienced principals, trained in Cognitive Coaching, to improve leadership practices.

As a former teacher and administrator, Cal continues to believe that people and organizations can be transformed when they are empowered and self-directed. He particularly enjoys working with schools and jurisdictions that focus on the establishment of positive and purposeful school cultures. He provides guidance to organizations by exploring the ways and means of developing enhanced teaching practices, shaping and adapting to change, and creating learning environments that support and foster both student and teacher success. He feels these are exciting and achievable outcomes.
