Learning Opportunity

Join Michelle Bence and Miriam Ramzy for a 4-part series digging into the Layers of Writing. Together, we will unpack the research around the complexities of writing, align the Layers of Writing with the ELAL curriculum, and share many strategies and tools that you can carry into your classrooms to support the writing development of your young learners.

February 5th (Morning, In-person)

In our first gathering, we will provide an overview of how writing develops. We will share a Layers of Writing framework, explaining how each core skill builds upon the next, driven by purpose. Additionally, we will discuss the different roles the layers play in facilitating and enhancing flow.

February 29th (Morning, Virtual)

This second session will target what are often considered the foundations of writing: Handwriting and Spelling. We will unpack the role of these layers in supporting written production and output.

* Holy Spirit Teachers are gathering at Holy Spirit Office - others welcome to join or gather remotely.

April 8th (Afternoon, Virtual)

Together, let's dig into how sentence structure develops from simple to complex helping writers better express their ideas. We will also look at our first category of vocabulary, descriptive language, and how we can use these types of words to build out more complex sentences.

* Holy Spirit Teachers are gathering at Holy Spirit Office - others welcome to join or gather remotely.

May 9th (Morning, In-person)

Looking at Tier 2 academic vocabulary, and the most common text structures in school, we will share ways in which we can scaffold writing practice, for all students, including reluctant writers. Finally, we will conclude the series by looking at how The Layers of Writing can come together in a purposeful writing environment, where all students experience support and success.
