Program

We welcome you to join the two-day conference, Caring, Connecting, Collaborating: Coaching in Complex Times, virtually on October 17 & 18 2022. The goal of this virtual event is to bring together leaders, administrators, instructional coaches, mental health coaches, inclusive learning coaches, new coaches and aspiring coaches to explore how to create caring connections for collaboration during complex times. Through thought-provoking keynotes and engaging concurrent sessions by experienced practitioners and instructional leaders, ARPDC will lead a conversation that affirms the promise and power of caring, connecting and collaborating.

We will explore two guiding questions during our time together:

- How might we interrogate our coaching practice to build efficacy in changing times?
- How might we connect and collaborate with others to stay current in the coaching conversation?

The conference is designed to spark curiosity, conversation and self-reflection. Come prepared to participate in keynote addresses, small group workshops, conversations as we move through our two day conversation.
